WHEN PUTTING AWAY KNIVES

Blades Should Be Carefully Rubbed With Olive Oil, Wrapped Sepa-rately and Put in Dry Place.

When knives are put away, enough being kept out for everyday use, the blade of each one should be rubbed thoroughly and carefully with olive oil. Then wrap the knives, each one separately, in paper and store them in as dry a place as possible. Every three months they should be taken out and looked at to see if there be any signs of rust. Put fresh oil on them before putting them away again, and when they are required for use wash the oll off and rub each knife with knife polish.

To clean rusty knives use p-wdered bath brick made into a paste with paraffin and apply it with a fiannel. Finish off with dry bath brick and a soft rag, which will leave a splendid

Geneva Always a Refuge. Religious refugees have always been made welcome at Geneva, and it was there John Knox wrote "The First Blast of the Trumpet Against the Monstrous Regiment of Women." His companions in exile were his wife, his mother-in-law, and Mrs. Locke, who had left her husband in order to be near him. To these women was vouchsafed the pleasure of hearing Knox read aloud the sentiment: "To promote a woman to bear rule, superiority, dominion or empire, above any realm, nation or city, is repugnant to Nature, contumely to God, a thing most contrarious to his approved will,

and approved ordinance; and finally it is the subversion of all equity and justice.

Chimney Built in Sixteen Days. A firm in St. Louis built last winter a chimney 85 feet high and three feet inside diameter in seven days' working time. It was actually in service, according to the Engineering News, sixteen days after receipt of the order to begin work. It was built of reinforced tile concrete on a reinforced concrete foundation. At no time during the building was the morning temperature higher than 20 degrees Fahrenheit. The materials were heated before mixing and placing, and fires were kept in the chimney constantly.

WHENCE COME WARS

parties whom we oppose, or religious sects we dislike, is promoting war. Circulating by word of mouth or printed page unproved charges against individuals, classes or nations tending to weaken the respect of men for men is undermining the founda-tion of peace. Cherishing the desire for gain by violence or deceit what we could not expect to gain speedily by usual lawful means, taking part in organizations to override law and to force public opinion to support them is sowing the seeds of such strife as has now brought half the population of the world into battlefields. We may who have no personal unkind feelfied for our chosen vocation.

About the 1st of May, 1854, I commenced my first school in Northwest Clinton. Taught 3 months, had a short Fall term, received $2.00 per week for these two terms; then a term of six months at $3.00 a week. It kept me pretty busy the first year. In those days the directors sought the teachers. Of course we boarded around. They did not have so many appropriations or pensions, granted for by W. H. Campbell, are too well acquainted with the methods of suspicion and distrust, our methods. We have seen the results of their plots, our plots. We are aware of their depredations, our depredations. Then, "we may as well confess that we are not guiltless among the causes of this welter of war that is devastating a vast continent and exciting millions of men who have no personal unkind feelings to-ward one another to akade on prospection. Additor for inspection. If no objections are filed by the 25th day of Iune, the Commissioners may confirm same.

Auditor's Office, Fulton County,
Ohio, June 1st, 1915.

Humor of Great Writers.

The humor of Dickens always has something sermonesque about it. The satire and humor of Thackeray are magnanimous. Instead of being guaranteed at the country man that is detaining millions of men who have no personal unkind feelings to ward one another to shed one another's life blood," and, therefore, rather than asking to what extent we are personally guilty, let us ask how can it be brought to an end? This is more important and beneficial to us all, and as such it should receive our best thought. The question then is, how can we destroy the causes of war' The answer is simple: By refusing to put them in circulation. Instead of being suspicious, let is be noble. Instead of being distrustful, let us be magnanimous. Instead of being jealmagnanimous. Instead of being jeal-ous, let us he helpful. Instead of be-ing bent on finding fault, let us be bent on being useful. This is the royal way to peace and development.
But as character is a growth, so i this. So far as we know it cannot be otherwise. It is a development for which we must strive. It is an attainment of a very precious kind, and we will not acquire it in a week, but as leaven in meal it is sure to make itself manifest. It has a beginning, and this we want to know. We must know the point from which we must start, for we cannot obtain this rare accomplishment without knowing it. Guess work will not do in a matter of wax fills the holes as the candle burns.

Annual Event in ireland.

At Waterford, Ireland, noted for its glass, the whitewashing of the solidly built stone gateposts to match the sweet reasonableness of the Perfect Man; because the best is none to good to the worst of men. We cannot go beyond what He has said about our relation to one another, and the way we can make it dear in our sight. He is the One that has made it clear that the children of men may be elevated to the realms of glorious delight. He is the One that has made plain the possibility of friendship, the sacredness of our persons, the civilizing power of confidence. He is the One who has appreciated fully the value of the image we wear—the image of God. To him we were made in the image of the Heavenly Father, and He lived and died in order for us to be made certain of it. And is it too much for us to consider our neighbors at home and of other nations and races from His point of view? Can we imagine ourselves good without doing this? We think not, and we believe with all our strength that this is our chief need. We need to see what man is, and seeing what he is, what man is, and seeing what he is, will we exaggerate his faults and minimize his virtues? Will we express unguarded criticism of him not based on full knowledge? Will we based on full knowledge? Will we nurture prejudices against him without cause? Will we cherish a desire to vex him for the sake of it? No, my brother, we will not. It we could only realize hour by hour what man is—the image of God—would we run the slightest risk of destroying it? No, my brother, if we are normal. For we may be well assured that our God will not hold us guiltless for doing it. These are the causes of war, and may the day dawn upon us soon when the children of men will be looked upon as the children of God.

Percussion caps (taking the place of the flint lock) came into use about 1820. Snider's system of breech-load ing was invented in 1859, although there had been attempts made at Sul der's achievement several years earlier than that date. The muzzle-loaders held on until the seventies. when they were practically discarded by all armies.
